About me

Hello, my name is Sérgio Oliveira. I'm a frontend developer currently based in Portugal. I enjoy staying active throughout the day and making the most of my time. I am proactive and value maintaining strict organization in my tasks and studies.

I moved to Portugal to study programming and found the opportunity to align my motivations and dreams in this field. Starting with JavaScript, I have learned to use several tools, including React, Git, Figma, TypeScript, Node.js, and Styled-components. To take on more complex freelance projects, I have continuously improved my skills in modern and dynamic frameworks like Next.js, Tailwind, Vite, Prisma, and more.

I am passionate about learning and highly curious because I believe knowledge is the key to overcoming challenges and solving problems. I strive to be communicative and dedicated, focusing on transparency and keeping up with the demands of the people I work with. This approach helps me build trust and create a collaborative environment where I can rely on my colleagues and provide support whenever needed.
